

Military and Freedom

"Today, patriots are smeared and destroyed. Generally the press refers to them as Fascists. The unabridged dictionary describes Fascists correctly when it states that they were Italian patriots who turned out to save their nation from the oncoming Bolsheviks."

"Republics throughout all history have had their birth, their years of vigorous growth, their hey-day of world success, which remained only so long as the race that gave the nation its basic strength, remained pure. With the introduction and interbreeding of lower types, decline came, and finally, national death."

"Upon entering West Point, we took an oath to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies whomsoever. That oath did not become dormant with retirement from active service, and my feeling is that where the Creator gives some of us strength to carry on, we should make a contribution to the defense of our Republic each day, to include that last hour which should find us "with boots on," I hope, at the very end of the trail."

MAJOR GEN. EDWIN A. WALKER
United States Army

"It will be my purpose now, as a civilian, to attempt to do what I have found it no longer possible to do in uniform . . . I must be free from the power of little men who, in the name of my country, punish loyal service to it."

"We have sworn no allegiance to any international body or organization, and there is no allowance for any release of our sovereignty, since the Constitution provides none."

"Our oath applies to full sovereignty in America, as provided in the Constitution. It provides for freedom of religion and worship. Today our relation and subordination to the U. N. puts every man signing the oath under a double standard."

"The destruction of our national sovereignty—which continues by United Nations design, with Washington support—must be accomplished from within the United States. It can happen only through dictatorial power, as it did in Russia and Cuba—implemented, as it was done there, by military forces turned upon the people."

MAJ. GEN. CHARLES A. WILLOUGHBY
United States Army (Ret.)

"Because (the Red Chinese) were assured from somewhere in Washington that if they should come over the Yalu, 'it would be under the sanctuary of being immune from any destructive action by our military forces within their own areas; that not even to save the lives of our men or insure the safety of our Army would we permit the Air Force to drop the atom bomb on military targets and enemy installations and troops' . . . That the Red Chinese commander apparently knew such a decision would be forthcoming, while General MacArthur did not, represents one of the blackest pages ever recorded."

LT. GEN. ALBERT C. WEDEMAYER
United States Army

An important part of Gen. Wedemeyer's testimony before the Senate committee in 1951 was this statement:

"My fear is this . . . supposing this enemy, this potential enemy (Russia), used some more powder kegs he has created around his phery. And he were to do that again and again in these various areas; a fruitless effort, militarily, and still the real enemy is not being damaged, but we are suffering seriously, economically. We are beginning to. Economically we are beginning to feel pressures, and we are losing—I cannot emphasize it too much, sir—the finest commodity we have, American manhood If we pit our manhood against the manhood of our potential enemy, I say to you, sir, for whatever my military opinion is worth, that we are going to lose . . ."

(Senator John C. Stennis, D. Miss.):
"Finally lose?"

General Wedemeyer: "Yes sir, . . . I want American ingenuity, I want American technology to protect the things that I hold dear. I don't want to spill American blood all over the battlefields of Europe and the Far East, sir, indiscriminately, and that is my fear."

LIQUIDATING AMERICA

Reprinted from—

Rockford (Ill.) Morning Star

Behind President Kennedy's July 4 speech at Independence Hall, where Mr. Kennedy plumped for an economic and political alliance with Europe, it is not difficult to see the finger of Walt W. Rostow.

Rostow is chairman of the State Department's policy planning board. He is the

Walter Rostow

President's closest advisor on international policy. He is author of the still secret document which is reportedly the master plan for what the New Frontier likes to call "a bold new foreign policy."

Rostow personally is on record as saying there will be no victory of capitalism over socialism. His foreign policy master plan is known to contend that the United States must expand its participation in institutions and organizations "which transcend the independent powers of the nation-state."

It was this latter point which Mr. Kennedy supported publicly in his Philadelphia speech. He not only suggested an economic and political alliance with the six-nation European Economic Community; he also argued that the day of American independence was past and that on the basis of "interdependence" we must now "look outward to cooperation with all nations in meeting their common concerns." He said we must expand our international alliances to help "the developing nations throw off the yoke of poverty" and "lift the weight from the shoulders of all." Mr. Kennedy made it obvious he favors progressive merger of separate sovereignties into some larger political unity.

Mr. Rostow and President Kennedy may be willing to surrender the United States and its citizens to a regional or a world government with its accompanying controls, taxes and mob rule, but the American people are not.

In the past 17 years, Americans have given generously of their wealth to help the rest of the world. We have taxed ourselves to the point of absurdity. We have gone along with one administration after another which told us we had to finance higher living standards all around the globe or Communism would triumph for sure. Today Communism is more widespread than ever, and our nation is on the verge of bankruptcy.

At a recent press conference, Mr. Kennedy said he would not want a U. S. European alliance to become "a rich man's club while the poorer nations get poorer." Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Rostow obviously favor complete international economic equality. No nation, they contend, has a right to be richer than any other.

Mr. Kennedy may have a personal guilt complex about being rich, but the American people as a nation have no apologies for the economic success we have had. America became rich because its people worked and invented and produced. We prospered because our government left us free to prosper.

Unless Congress puts a halter on Mr. Kennedy, the present administration will lead us into foreign alliances and eventually into a world government whose foreign majorities would be happy to vote to divide our wealth. The Rockford Star does not favor the liquidation of the United States of America.

Fake Christmas Stamps

The Post Office Department states that for twenty years they have not printed a Christmas stamp for fear they would offend a minority. This year, because of unprecedented demand, they selected four which were presented to Jewish leaders for their decision. One drawing was rejected because the cross pieces in the window pane resembled a cross. The stamp finally selected by the Jews has no suggestion as to Christmas and Christianity. Why have a stamp at all—it was the thousands of Christians who asked that the stamp be printed. Authority for the Jews selecting the stamp for Christmas is the Wall Street Journal, November 9, 1962. 3% of the population does not like Christmas stamps, BUT they do like the Christmas shopping.

Kennedy Runs Wild

Republished from—

Cincinnati Inquirer—Editorial

The issue is not, as President Kennedy declared in blistering terms Wednesday afternoon, whether the U.S. Steel Corp. showed "utter contempt for the interests of 185 million Americans." It is whether we have traveled so far down the road toward a regimented, totalitarian economy that a private industry that seeks to manage its own affairs thereby invokes the unmitigated wrath of the Federal government and unleashes a barrage of recriminations.
